Qualifications:

We have to change the way we do business in Washington, DC. The federal government is completely out of control. Massive spending, soaring deficits and crippling taxes are putting our country in serious jeopardy. I have always said that the best hope for Utah - and the United States of America - is to return to the principles of fiscal discipline, limited government, accountability and a strong national defense.

In the mid-1980's I moved to Utah after being recruited by LaVell Edwards to be a placekicker on the Brigham Young University football team. After a successful football career and earning my degree in Communications, I married my wife Julie and spent sixteen years in the local business community. Julie and I have three children, Max, Ellis, and Kate.

In 2008, with no paid staff, no name recognition, no campaign debt and very little money I beat a 12-year incumbent to win this seat. Now I represent the people of Utah's 3rd congressional district.

I was elected to represent Utah to Washington, not Washington to Utah. I promised to fight for conservative principles, and that's exactly what I've done. Big government is on the attack, and we need to fight back.
